SDSU Meat Science personnel, Hy-Vee staff, and numerous Cattle-men groups grilled hamburgers March 31st in Sioux City, Iowa at the Tyson Events Center for an estimated 12,000 people. The event was hosted by Sioux City in support of Beef Products Incorporated, who has received vast media attention for their Lean Finely Textured Beef product. The volunteers cooked hamburgers with Lean Finely Textured Beef to allow consumers the opportunity to eat the product and make their own decision about it. The event was an overwhelming success and truly displayed the community's support of Beef Products Incorporated.

Extension Beef Feedlot Specialist Dr. Ben Holland was honored at a farewell reception on March 15. He has accepted a position in the Technical Services Division of Merck Animal Health.

Former Extension Beef Feedlot Specialist Dr. Brad Johnson posed recently with the SDSU Wool Judging Team in Lubbock, TX. The Wool Team was enroute to the Houston Livestock Show.

Hailey Becking, high school student from Florence, SD was the recipient of the outstanding Animal Science award at the Eastern South Dakota Science Fair held on the SDSU campus March 23.

Janna Kincheloe began employment February 22 at WRAC as Research/Extension Associate in the position vacated when Mindy Hubert became a Field Specialist. Although the position is located in the NRM Dept. supervised by Dr. Pat Johnson, she will play a vital role in research/Extension programming in Animal Science originating from WRAC. She previously was a county Agricultural Agent in Montana for eight years. One of her goals is to complete a PhD in AS with Dr. Ken Olson as her advisor.

Early in the morning of March 2, a fire broke out in the Cow/Calf Unit on the SDSU campus. The central portion of the building was destroyed, as was most of the equipment (tractor, truck, etc.); however, a student employee with assistance from a student in a neighboring residence hall, were able to rescue the cows and their calves from the burning building. Manager Kevin Vander-Wal has expressed his appreciation for assistance provided as a result of the fire: "I would like to take this opportunity to express my gratitude to everyone who helped in any way during and after the fire at the Cow/Calf Unit. Many of you offered help or equipment and many more with just kind words and encouragement. I'd like to start naming names, but that would surely leave someone out. I was amazed by the patience and understanding from the vast majority of the Little I exhibitors. Facilities and electrical power were far from ideal, but together we made it go. Thanks to all!"

Nearly 90 producers attended the education event at the SDSU Sheep Unit on March 22. These photos was taken prior to the afternoon program; overflow parking just east of the main barn and our audience. An informal producer survey conducted at the event indicated this group of producers represented approximately 9,000 stock ewes!
